

FIRSTWORKS PRESENTS: "Jazz & Democracy" w/Jazz at Lincoln Center

Returning to our inaugural collaboration topic to reach a whole new generation of students, Jazz & Democracy represents the core ideals of the FW/JALC collaboration -- mixing social/emotional learning to explore what it means to be an American through the study of Jazz. The Professional Development associated with this Residency is for all grade levels, but, we are actively trying to engage elementary school teachers to plant music and history "seeds" with younger students.

"Before, I thought the meaning of Jazz was just enjoyable music, but it's not. It's more. It's history transformed in music notes."

– Student from Central Falls following JALC's January 2004 residency performance

Great Opportunity for Social Studies/History Teachers and Music Teachers!

"The FirstWorks approach to educational programming inspired us at JALC to make stronger connections between our performances and education. As our orchestra noticed, the audiences in Providence were much more engaged and responsive due to this unique model, and we strive to emulate that in all of our travels."

– Todd Stoll, Director of Education, Jazz at Lincoln Center
